

The Russian Revolution of 1917 changed the world forever. For once, it appeared that the oppressed workers were within grasp of the levers of state power and for a while the prospect of permanently ending exploitation seemed a real possibility. The revolutionary mood swept across continents and its impact was felt far beyond the parties of the left and the organised labour movement. The revolution inspired writers, poets, intellectuals and philosophers as much as it did workers and activists. With this special Occasional Publication the Socialist History Society commemorates these momentous events of one hundred years ago with a series of specially written articles that examine the reactions to the revolution and its impact in different areas.

Launch of the Socialist History Society Occasional Publication

1917

THE RUSSIAN REVOLUTION,
REACTIONS AND IMPACT

Socialist History Society Public Meeting

Saturday 21st October 2017 2pm

MARX MEMORIAL LIBRARY

37a Clerkenwell Green EC1R 0DU

nearest tube Farringdon

FREE TO ATTEND

ALL WELCOME

Speakers:

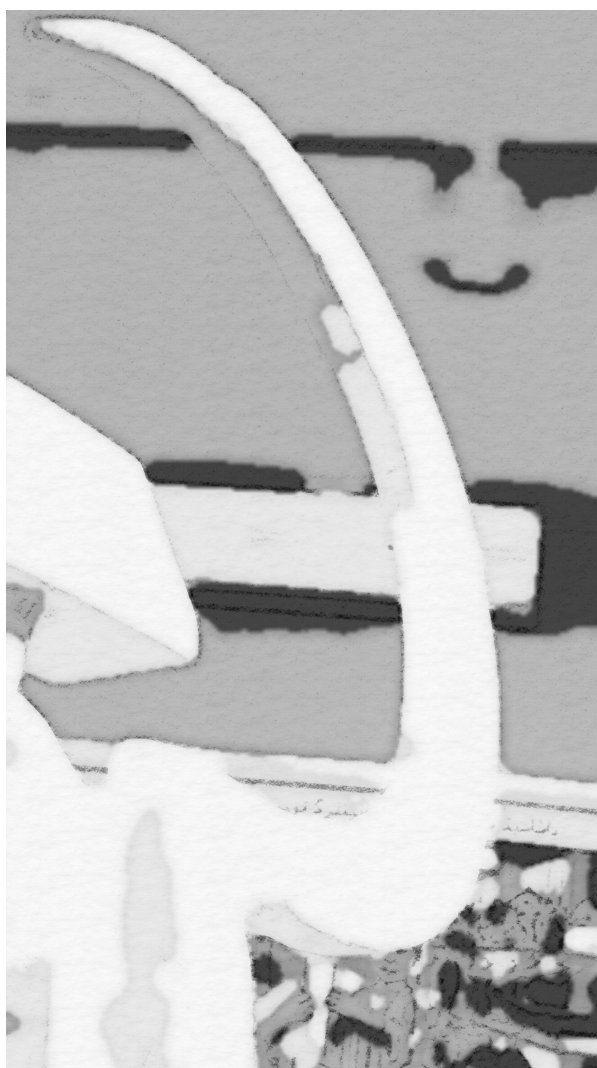

Toby Abse

Francis King

David Morgan

John Partington

Greta Sykes

SOCIALIST HISTORY SOCIETY